Vigil wins praise

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

The fifth annual vigil for Flight 255 crash victims last Sunday was praised for "good taste" by Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally.

McAnally and some city council members had urged the memorial group to consider an alternate plan this year rather than continuing their usual vigil on the hillside where the plane crashed five years ago killing 154 persons. Only one small girl survived that mishap.

McAnally and Councilman Noah (Peter) Bergeron revealed several weeks ago they they hoped the mourning group would move to a different site for their memorial, claiming that having a lighted vigil on the side of the highway could ultimately lead to another disaster--this time by motorists being distracted by the nighttime activity.

"At least this year it was not turned into a media circus," the mayor said. "I'd like to congratuate all of them...it was a much more dignified effort.

"I can assure them that no one in Romulus could think of anything but that terrible crash between the hours of 8 and 9 p.m. Sunday," she said.

In the past, local council members complained the video media would push microphones and cameras into the faces of the survivors and friends of the crash victims and ask very crude questions.

This year the group widened their grief weekend program in Romulus by having a dinner and fellowship session at the Ramada Inn on Saturday night night followed by an ecumenical religious service on Sunday at St. Aloysius Catholic Church.

The weekend was climaxed by a vigil on Middlebelt road from 7 to 9:15 p.m. That portion of the vigil included music, readings and time for reflection on the lives of those killed in the crash.

Junior High classes still set at college

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Planned Romulus Junior High School classes will go on schedule this fall at the Western Campus of the Wayne County Community College, despite the cancelling of regular college classes for the season because of the recent voter rejection of a millage proposal.

The Romulus students will be attending half-day classes at the college, while construction workers continue renovating the local Junior High Building.

Joel Carr, assistant superintendent for finance and operations in the Romulus district, said he talked with WCCC officials Monday and was assured that adequate college maintenance staff members will be on hand as high school classes begin in September.

"The fact that no adult students will be on campus may be a plus with some Romulus parents," Carr said. "One of the heavy concerns some parents had early in the planning period of this project was the possible interaction between the Romulus teens and adult students."

Carr continued, "That may take some of the pressure off some of the concerned parents."

Art McPharlin, administrative assistant to Superintendent of Romulus Schools Dr. William Bedell, said concerns regarding the issue will be aired at the upcoming transition team meeting Sept. 11 at the school board offices.

The transition team is a group of school administrators and parents, who are working to alleviate any problems with the college experience.

McPharlin said students will have had two days on the college campus by the time the transition team members meet and will be equipped to address any new issues that arise by that time.

The parents will then be bussed to the junior high to view the construction progress and then onto the college campus, where the students will be attending classes.

McPharlin said he has been informed that while college classes at the Van Buren Township campus have been cancelled, additional WCCC administrative activities will be occurring in the building.

On Monday Ronald Field, WCCC vice president for academic affairs, had announced the cancelling of fall college classes as WCCC battles to combat a $7.3 million deficit.

It was reported that 25 or more college employees (ranging from faculty to maintenance and librarian staff members) face layoffs or suspension of work duties pending the closing of regular affairs at the Van Buren campus.

In the meantime, students registering for the fall are being urged to consider one of the other WCCC campuses including nearby Taylor.

The college reportedly is offering a shuttle for students to the other campuses, Field said, since the Van Buren campus has been popular in the past with handicapped students and homemakers.

It is expected that the WCCC board members will place another millage on the November ballot, possibly cutting the time of the millage hike from 10 years back to only three in hopes of getting a more positive response from the voters.

Earlier this year WCCC District 7 trustee Ted Scott said, "We consider the Western Campus an asset to the college and it will be utilized more in the future. To the best of my knowledge, there are no plans to close it."

WCCC President Rafael Cortada acknowledged earlier that the western campus was under utilized, but expressed feelings that areas near the Van Buren campus would be developed in the near future making it a prime site for area students.

Accused killers arraigned

Just when area residents were begining to think that the threat of car and truck jackings was history, a Romulus truck driver fell victim to such a fatal attack.

A 41-year-old Romulus man was stabbed in the neck on Aug. 12 during such a truck jacking, the first in the city, and then his neck was slashed by two men.

Police officials credit tremendous teamwork by nearly a score of local police officers and the public for the quick arrest of two 17-year-old Romulus Senior High School drop-outs.

The pair were arraigned in 34th District Court Friday on charges they killed Frederick G. Adair Sr. of Romulus, while he slept in his truck.

The defendants, James Swazey and Richard Mills, both of Romulus, were charged with murdering Adair shortly before 2 a.m. on Aug. 12 in a parking lot near Joan Street and Middlebelt Road.

The pair were charged with conspiracy to murder, murder in the first degree and felony murder.

Presiding Judge Henry Henry Zaborowski, who questioned the pair Friday morning, said he would file petitions to obtain legal counsel for the teens since they had no financial means to pay for such services.

He entered a not guilty plea for both defendants and ordered them held without bail pending their preliminary hearing on Aug. 26.

Mills told Zaborowski that he left school June 9, while still in the 10th grade. He said he lives with a female friend and does some roofing work occasionally to earn money.

His closest relatives, an aunt and uncle live in Florida, he said.

Swazey testified he lived with this grandmother and his parents live in Westland.

He told Zaborowski that he quit school in the 10th grade and was not employed.

Romulus Police Sgt. Dan Snyder reported that the two defendants apparently were intent on stealing a vehicle and driving to Florida, when one spotted Adair sleeping in his truck early Wednesday.

Family Center under fire from county officials

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP News Editor

Wayne County officials claim that the agency contracted to operate the Wayne County Family Center Shelter has violated the contract and county officials are taking legislative action to remove the agency.

Officials from the agency operating the shelter, Wayne Metropolitan Community Services, disagree with the violation charges and are challenging the county officials in court.

"We've sent the 30-day termination notice and now we're in court," said Michael Duggan, deputy assistant to county executive Edward McNamara. "Wayne Metropolitan Community Services Agency has been a management disaster. They have been plagued with chronic problems with staff.

"Most recently they lost their director and they still haven't replaced her and it's been two months already."

The family center was a unique concept in homeless housing which received national attention in 1990 when county officials introduced it to officials from 38 communities in Wayne County. Most of those communities pledged block grant funding toward the center to pay for the rennovation of the building which is located on the Eloise property near Henry Ruff Road and Michigan Avenue.

The center which opened in June of 1991 was to serve families in need of temporary shelter and also in need of counseling and social work. Families also received child care, transportation, health screening and assistance in finding permanent homes.

Each family which applied to stay at the center could stay for 30 days. During their stay their children would attend Wayne-Westland schools and they would be given assistance in finding employment and housing.

The center had just completed the first year of a five-year contract awarded to the agency from the county, according to county officials. The plan was approved of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which provided some funding, according to officials.

Wayne County officials are most upset that the center is rarely at full capacity, according to Duggan.

"The contract requires them to be at capacity," Duggan said. "With all of the homeless people in this area, we can't understand why they are not at capacity."

Duggan also added that the center was usually occupied by one-third to one-half the limit.

"We're not meeting the needs of the community," Duggan said. "It was a chronic problem and we have to do something about it."

Officials from the Wayne Metropolitan Community Services Agency issued a statement Tuesday denying those claims.

"The Executive Director of Wayne-Metro Luther J. Flanagan, states that he reasons the county give for taking the action are patently false and that any change will be damaging to the homeless families living at the shelter," officials stated. "The primary reason the county cites is jeopardy of HUD funding for failure and refusal of Wayne-Metro to achieve full potential."

Agency officials also stated that they served double the number of persons proposed in the HUD contract and that two-thirds of the residents are children.

Flanagan claims that 25 percent of the funding for the center comes from HUD. He also stated that 75 percent of the funding is collected by the agency.

"Additionally, contrary to the contract, the county has not, since March 1992, disbursed to Wayne-Metro the monthly amounts provided by HUD for staffing costs," agency officials stated.

Singers seeking help

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

They are trying to reach a dream of a lifetime, but they need the help of the community.

The John Glenn High School Choral Music Department is trying to collect $49,000 in order to participate in a 200-voice chorus at Carnegie Hall May 30, 1993 which comprises four to five choruses from throughout the U.S.

Approximately 36 students and 13 adults have been choosen to represent John Glenn for this prestigious honor, according to Judith A. Premin, conductor/director of the John Glenn music department.

"The 200 voice chorus will be conducted by Dr. Jerry Blackstone from the University of Michigan who will also be making his debut," Premin said. "We've had several auditions. It was very difficult to not be able to take everyone, but we are all excited about being asked to become a part of history. It's an honor."

The $49,000 represents $1,000 per person which includes air fare, according to Marjorie R. Kolacz, general chairwoman of the Carnegie Hall trip.

"We would appreciate any donations from businesses or residents in the area," Kolacz said. "I believe this is not only an honor for these children and the school, but for this community also."

The 200-voice chorus will be singing Mendelssohn's Psalm 42 for soprano, chorus and orchestra. The piece will be sung in German, according to Premin.

John Glenn is the only Michigan school which has been asked by the MidAmerica Productions to participate in the event.

In 1993, MidAmerica Productions will celebrate the 10th anniversary of the group. Their goal is to highlight the appearance of outstanding adult, university and high school ensembles from the U.S., according to Premin.

Any residents or businesses interested in contributing to the event can call Kolacz at 722-7426 or send a check or money order to: John Glenn High School Choral Department, Carnegie Hall Trip, P.O. Box 563, Wayne, Mich. 48184.

Area residents, who wish to aid Jerry Lewis' kids and have fun doing so, can join in a kick-a-thon fundraiser in Romulus on Sept. 5- 7.

The fundraiser for the Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy Association telethon is planned from noon to 6 p.m. each day at the Drysdale School of Tae-Kwon Do at 11201 Middlebelt Road.

Participants will be eligible to receive one of many prizes including an authentic Hachiman Sword for the top fund raiser.

More than $3,500 in tires, oil taken

A thief stole more than $3,500 in oil, tires and towing chains from a business garage located in the 29000 block of Hildebrandt street last Friday morning, according to police reports.

Police said a lock on a gate was cut and a section of an overhead door was pushed in to gain access to the garage. Stolen were 80 cases of oil, 11 truck tires, 10 sets of towing chains and assorted tools.

Man stabbed in neck with fork

A 38-year-old Taylor man was stabbed in the neck and left forearm late Friday night, while visiting his brother in Romulus.

Police arrested the Romulus brother and charged him with the assault that allegedly occurred in his home in the 16000 block of Farnum.

The victim reportedly refused medical treatment.

Landscaping equipment stolen

A Romulus landscaping contractor told police last Friday that someone stole $10,975 worth of his equipment that was being kept in a fenced in area in the 33000 block of Ecorse road.

Police said no sign of a forced entry was found in the storage area.

Library honors summer readers

More than 100 area youngsters were honored last week by the Romulus Public Library for reading or listening to more than 67,193 minutes of books during the current summer reading program.

Kim Potter, youth services librarian, said the youngsters were involved in the eight-week program that was organized to help stimulate a love of reading in the lives of young people.

"Many tell us youth would rather watch videos than read today. We want to counter that attitude," Potter said.

In addition, Potter explained, stimulating youth readership in the summer usually carries over to the fall and beyond.

Smoke detectors distributed free

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Spurred on by an early-morning house fire that killed a 46-year-old Romulus woman, Romulus residents are now applying for the 500 free smoke detectors available from firefighters.

Fire Chief William Greenslait and his firemen began installing the smoke detectors this past week in the homes of senior citizens and needy families.

"If one had been installed prior to the July fire on Whitehorn street, maybe that woman would still be alive today," he said.

On Thursday morning, firefighters Craig McAughey and Darnell Hearst of Fire Station Three began installing the smoke detectors at the home of Clara Williams on Fourth Street.

Williams, a widow who has resided in Romulus since 1948, thanked Greenslait and Councilman Randolph Gear, who watched the installation of the unit just outside her bedroom.

Williams also praised Hearst, who brought the free installation possibility to her attention.

"I think it is wonderful that the firemen are aiding senior citizens without spending tax dollars," she said.

Greenslait urged residents to make sure they place a smoke detector near the sleeping area of the home, if they have only one such device.

He also urged residents not to place them near the kitchen area, because cooking efforts many times set off the alarms unnecessarily.

Gear said he will advance the cry for the need for smoke detectors in the homes of senior citizens, "so that we do not have to suffer the loss of any other citizens unnecessarily."

Additional efforts will be extended to make local residents aware of the free smoke detectors, Gear said, including telling local pastors to pass on the message to their congregations.

Both Greenslait and Gear acknowledged that some suspicion of government may be blocking citizens from calling for the free units, but assured residents that firefighters are not looking for fire safety violations while installing the smoke detectors.

"We are solely interested in saving lives," Greenslait said. Persons interested in such a gift installation need only call their closest fire station to see if they are eligible," he said.

Killers

A plan to kill the victim was set up, Snyder said, and the pair went to his truck and initially stabbed Adair in the throat.

When Adair didn't die quickly, Snyder said, he was then slashed across the throat. Adair still continued to fight back despite the fatal wounds, Snyder said, and the defendants fled from the scene.

Adair then was able to start his truck and drive a few blocks on Joan Street. He lost control of his truck and it landed in a ditch. Adair sounded his horn and then stepped out of his truck and died, police said.

Neighbors heard the horn and then saw the truck in the ditch with its lights on and a body sprawled next to it. Someone immediately called 9-1-1.

Police found Adair had bled to death before they arrived at the scene, Snyder said, and the officers called for help to canvass the area.

A total of 17 Romulus uniform officers and detectives spent the next 18 hours talking to neighbors and several witnesses.

Toward the end of the neighborhood canvas, police received a phone call that potentially linked the pair with the killing, Snyder said.

Then about 8 p.m. Romulus police apprehended the pair without a struggle in an apartment complex on Middlebelt Road.

Snyder, who was assisted in the investigation by Detective Sgts. Cora Semrau and Gordon Malaniak, praised the teamwork supplied by all the police officers and citizens involved in the case. "Without the help of our fellow officers and the public, we never would have made the arrests so speedily," he said.

Friends and family mourn drowned baby

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Friends and relatives gathered Tuesday at the funeral of 18-month-old Raymond (Two-Bear) Scott Bushrow II of Romulus, who drowned in Saginaw Bay Aug. 9. The rites were at the John N. Santeiu and Son Inc. Funeral Home in Garden City.

The Rev. Robert McDonald of Fair Haven Baptist Church officiated. Interment was in Romulus City Cemetery.

The child's body had been sought by Arenac County Sheriff's divers for six days after he reportedly drowned in the bay that night. It was recovered about 4:30 p.m. Friday by volunteers from the nearby Augres Yacht Club. The body was found about three miles from where the boy reportedly fell into the water.

The boy, the only child of Iris (Kaye) and Raymond (Scotty) Bushrow, climbed off the family boat that Sunday after his parents accidentally fell into the water.

Bushrow was able to pull his young son out of water several times and squeeze the swallowed water out of his system, he said, but after an extended period of time in the bay, both he and his son collapsed under the water. The father was able to pull his son up one last time by the hair, but then lost him, he told investigators.

The parents continued treading water while crying out for help for more than an hour, according to reports.

A fellow Romulus resident, Thomas Blade, who earlier was fishing several miles away, heard their cries and rescued them. They were treated for hypothermia at Standish Community Hospital and released.

Bushrow is the owner and operator of Davis Autobody Craftsmen Inc. of Romulus. His rescuer is the owner of Blade Welding Service Inc., also of Romulus.

Young Bushrow was born Feb. 21, 1991 in Wayne.

He also is survived by his grandparents, Raymond and Beverly Bushrow and Joe Nolan; and many aunts and uncles including Joe Nolan Jr., Katie Nolan, Kim Bebout, Joe Nolan III, Karan Quillan, Linda Engle, Bubbie Annis, Laura Tilman, Venice Vahle, Sandy Hornsby, Michael Michelle, Stephanie Hornsby, Raymona L. Bushrow, Beverly Bushrow, Megan Pike and Stephen Bushrow.

Road construction nears

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

With a mile-long Smith Road construction work study near completion here, the cash-strapped Romulus City Council and school district are planning to begin distributing unused funds this fall.

Dennis Oakes, Romulus community development director, said the city plans to let bids for the mile-long construction project from Middlebelt to Merriman as soon as possible.

That will allow funds, currently on the books of one of the three area Tax Increment Financing Authority boards, to be given to the two taxing bodies in October and in April 1993.

It is expected the city will gain about $50,000 at each time and the school district will gain $200,000.

Another major $6 million Smith Road construction effort in the Wick Road area is also nearing the bid stage, Oakes said. That project travels west of Merriman Road for a mile and a quarter to a portion south of Vining Road.

Another local TIFA project calls for the final resurfacing of Wahrman Road. The project will be continued as soon as funding is available, Oakes revealed.

Another $2.5 million development project involving road improvements, new lights, landscaping, parking facilities and other improvements on Goddard Road from City Hall to Five Points is moving slowly under the direction of the Downtown Development Authority, Oakes said, as no bonding is paying for the efforts there.

That project is continuing as funds allow, he said.

Local horse reunion requested

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Do you know the current whereabouts of Black Sugaba, an eight year old quarter horse last known to be owned by a Romulus resident?

Red's owner, Janet Hoff, of New Boston said she learned several years ago that Black was owned by someone in Romulus.

Hoff said unlike many animals, horses have strong memories and therefore she would like to stage a reunion between the two horses if possible.

Red has been a show horse for a number of years, Hoff said, and has won numerous ribbons and awards.

Last week at request of the Rev. J.D. Landis, pastor of the Community United Methodist Church, she and Red treated scores of children at the church's Summer Bible School to a ride about church property.

More than 90 youths and adults took part in the Bible School program last week, Landis said, and many of the younger children availed themselves of the opportunity to ride on Red.

Hoff said it was the second year that she and Red have offered such services here.

But Hoff said she continues to press her search for Black.

Mayor requesting volunteers

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Mayor Beverly McAnally, just back from a Michigan Mayors Association meeting in Dearborn, revealed that many municipal governmental leaders are looking for additional citizen volunteers to help with the current statewide funding crisis.

A revival of volunteerism is being pressed, she said, since that state is mandating more and more things for local governments to do, without giving city and township governments help in paying for such innovations.

McAnally said she was pleased that so many of the 50-60 mayors in attendance got verbally involved in seeking solutions for the joint problems facing municipalities at large.

The most distressing feeling, she said, was the fact that many of her long time associates are throwing up their hands in disgust and not seeking re-election this year.

"The combination of new demands and less and less tax dollars is killing their desire to serve the public," she said. "The other thing that is forcing leaders out of office," she said, "is the overriding concept that all politicians are evil."

"In Romulus we are proud of our success rate on volunteerism, both those serving on city boards and committees and the local fire department itself.

"Our fire department is the envy of the area," she said.

Her next goal in the field of volunteerism, McAnally said, is to try to get more parents involved in helping out with athletic and social programs as chaperones or group leaders.

Romulus teen prepares for fall

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Sorry M.C. Hammer, but baggy pants are definitely out for teens as the new school year is about to begin, fashionable Romulus Library page Jennifer Filek, 16, claimed this week.

At the same time, plaid skirts are in as well as various clothing styles made in a forest green color, Filek said.

On the way out are the Used clothing brand and pastel color dress and sportswear. Also fading from the youth scene, she said, are bang hair styles and wild makeup.

Still holding their own in the modern teen clothing trends are Polo shirts and Guess jeans and shirts.

Also very popular are slingback shoes and, for the relaxed look, Ked tennis shoe styles.

Long straight hair and the French twist styles, the natural look in make up and matching jewelry will also be the favorites of local teens, she said.

Filek, 16, said regular rock and roll music will return to favor, while other musical styles will remain popular with various individual teens.

Just Desserts

It wasn't a pretty sight.

There we were, my 89-year-old mother and I, traipsing slowly through Westland Center when she appeared in front of us.

Our attention was first drawn to the cloud of blue cigarette smoke which she exhaled, ever so smartly, around herself and anyone who happened to be within puffing distance. We were then entranced by her outfit, obviously chosen with meticulous care for the occasion.

From her 3-feet of ratted hair, sprayed to a lovely cement-like texture, to her men's black oxford-type shoes, we knew that we were in the presence of a real trend setter. The woman was a walking fashion statement.

But, more than anything else, we were totally entranced with her jeans. Sure, we're hip. My mother and I still know what's cool. She watches Geraldo and Oprah and Sally. We know what's happening. We just never saw it happen quite like this and never right in front of us at a perfectly nice shopping center in the middle of the afternoon.

Her jeans didn't have a rear end. You know, like a seat...OK, let me make it even more clear. Her butt was clearly visible through the rips and tears strategically placed in the portion of her pants designed to cover that portion of her anatomy on which she would normally sit.

We didn't flinch when the knees and thighs of the jeans had rips and holes. We understand that is some kind of fashion thing among those who can't afford good psychiatric care. But this woman's most personal portions were hanging out. Even her gynocologist would have been embarrassed.

I made every effort to ignore it and travel in another direction. Mildred, my mother, however, is not that type of emotional coward. Visiting me for the first time in many years, Mildred is less than accustomed to this type of spectacle. About the most excitement Mildred experiences these days is a growth spurt in the pansy bed.

Now, don't get me wrong. Mildred has had her day...and quite a day it was from all accounts. But, at 89 her life has calmed down a bit.

But we don't completely change our spots, as my leopard-like mother proved to me last week.

Taking a deep breath and pulling herself up to her entire 5-feet of height, Mildred accosted the young woman with an air of sweetness and concern I've only heard her use with those she judges to be mentally deficient.

"Excuse me, my dear," she said, with just enough of an aged quiver in her voice to be believable, "but are you aware that your entire ass is hanging out of your pants and you are making a spectacle of yourself?"

The woman looked as if 10-gallons of ice water had been thrown on her.

She mumbled something incoherent and walked briskly to the nearest exit, derriere bobbling with every step.

Mildred smiled sweetly, looked at me and said, "How proud that bimbo's mother must be."

Vegetables in Disguise

Look, this wasn't easy.

It took a lot to admit that perhaps trickery would have to play a part in forcing some people to eat vegetables. While many of us love nothing better than fresh, red ripe tomatoes from the garden slathered with salt and eaten with juice running down the chin, there are those who disdain the love apple.

Hard to believe, but yet there are those who would not enjoy fresh beets, cooked and served sliced with a large dollop of fresh cottage cheese. And there are individuals who would rather starve than eat from a plate which holds carrots. And zucchini...there is an entire group organized for the prevention of the consumption of zucchini.

And while it's been a terrible summer for produce, eventually that zucchini will ripen and while there may not be as much of it as usual, it will arrive. And creative cooks will know exactly how to get rid of it and all the other homegrown produce one simply cannot throw away.

It's easy. Bake it. Disguise the stuff as dessert and even the most finicky eater will gobble it up thinking they're getting some wonderful treat. In fact, these ARE wonderful treats, they just also happen to be chock full of vegetables and lots of vitamins and healthy stuff.

These recipes contain vegetables masquerading as dessert ingredients. Save them. If the stuff ever ripens or if next year we actually do have a summer, they'll be invaluable.

Local school may become historical site

By KAREN GRANDISON
ANP Special Writer

Patchin Elementary School may soon be designated a state land mark, thanks to the efferts of the Patchin Research Committee, led by principal Donald Massey.

"It's really a follow-up of a research of five years." Massey said, "It takes a good 8-10 months to do the research."

The committee researched the history of the school as part of the application process for a State Historical Marker. The committee, which includes Massey, Ruth Dale, Pat Estep, Wilfred Green, Virginia Lear, Millie McCollum and Peter Urbaniak, gathered documentation from local, county and state archives and historical museums to support the claim that Patchin School was founded in the early 1830s.

"We know that the school is well over a 100 years old," Massey said, "We believe that the first building, a log cabin, was located across the street from the current site.

"In 1852, a one-room school was built where the current school is located." Massey said.

The land the school sits on was owned by Abe Patchen, who came from New York in 1849. His farm was located at the present-day Newburgh and Hix Roads location.

During their investigation, a school photograph dated 1890 was discovered in the Plymouth Historical Museum. Twenty-one students and their teacher, Miss Bessie Rattenbury, were pictured in the front of the one-room Patchen, the original spelling of the school.

"When we were doing research for the marker, we came across a photo," Massey said. "I didn't realize that Bessie was the mother of Margaret Dunning, who's very well-respected in the Plymouth area. When I found out that her mother taught here, I asked her to present the picture."

The Plymouth Library known as the Dunning-Hough Library was named after her mother, Massey said.

At the presentation, Dunning read a statement her mother had written about her experiences as a Patchin Elementary School teacher more than 100 years ago.

The picture hangs in the entrance of the school next to several early photos which have been collected by Massey, who has been the principal for seven years. The original 140 year-old-school bell is mounted in the school lobby and is rung every morning by a different student at the beginning of each school day.

Massey said that the dedication will probably be next spring.

"I would hope we find out next month," Massey said. "I think what will happen is that the state will send a write-up on what will be on the marker. Our committee will get together and decide if any changes are needed.

"We approve or recommend, but the state has final word." Massey said.

In order to colect money for the marker, the committee is discussing selling souvenir plates.

Massey is very positive about the landmark being granted and said that the historical background is very important to the school.

"It sets a tradition of our building." Massey said.

Brother, sister meet for first time

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

Tears and laughter were in abundance at the Royce Hotel in Romulus Aug. 15 when Wayne resident Mary Murdock, 50, met her brother Jerry Tinkle, 59 for the first time.

Murdock's sister, Karen, recently received a letter from Tinkle explaining that he believed he was her half brother.

"My sister thought it was some kind of a game at first because the letter started out like one of those prize-winning letters," Murdock said. "She called me to verify the letter, and I told her 'yes, we do have a half brother.'

"I was the only one out of the family my mother (Madeline Pebworth Powers) told that we had a half brother. "

Murdock said her mother had a brief affair in 1933 when she became pregnant with Tinkle.

"She was going to secretarial school at the time in Oaklahoma," Murdock said. "She continued to go to school while she was pregnant. She didn't really know what to do. My grandfather found out, and he made arrangements to have her give the baby up for adoption."

Tinkle knew he was adopted when he was 14 years old, according to Murdock.

"He loved his adopted parents very much so he didn't want to pursue looking for his biological mother at that time," Murdock said.

Recently Tinkle's adopted mother died, and it was at that time he decided to trace his family background. Besides Karen, Murdock has two brothers-Michael and James.

"There was a phone number on the letter to my sister," Murdock said. "I called him, and sure enough, he's my half brother. "

Tinkle lives in Fortworth, Texas with his wife Barbara and four children including his only child, Yseltda.

Murdock only had the weekend to become acquainted with her brother. She said the entire family is hoping for a big reunion at Christmastime in Texas.

"He does look like my mom through his mouth," Murdock said. "He also has our grandfather's nose. It was such a pleasure meeting him for the first time. I've always wondered what he would look like and where he was."

Murdock said the only regret the family has is Tinkle wasn't able to see his biological mother before she died in 1988.

Red Cross plans blood drives

What began as a gradual drop off in blood collections at the end of June, has escalated to an outright plunge, reported the American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Blood Services Region.

Red Cross bloodmobiles throughout Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair and Washtnew counties have collected 21 percent less blood in July than in June this year, according to a spokesman. This makes it difficult to supply the needs of patients in the 59 hospitals the Red Cross supplies in southeastern Michigan. Supplies for certain types of blood are already dangerously low, the spokesman added, and the Red Cross is conducting supplemental imports to make up for these shortfalls, but supplies continue to shrink.

Projected collections during the month of August indicate the development of even more serious problem.

"The projected August collections are the worst I have seen in the 13 years I have been with Red Cross," said Jenell Joiner, associate director of Donor Resources Development.

"To prevent an extreme shortage," said Principal Officer A. William Shafer, M.D., M.D., "we need an immediate and sustained increase in collections. In particular, we need more organizations to sponsor blood drives and organizations that have committed to blood drives to carry through on that commitment. On many days in August, more than half of our mobile units are not scheduled to collect blood."

For information on sponsoring a blood drive, call 494-2790. For an appointment to donate at one of the 10 Red Cross centers located throughout the Detroit metropolitan area, call 494-2800 or 1-800-582- 4383.

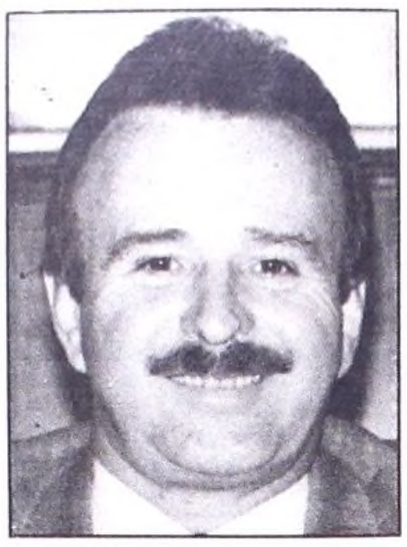
Voters view economy as main election issue

J.D. Landis



David Jacokes

Keith DeMolay

Daniel Calabrese

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

As the Bush-Quayle team battles the Clinton-Gore duo for the presidency in the next two-and-one-half months, most campaign-watchers believe that the economy will be at the forefront of the skirmishes.

Although the majority of responses to the random survey of western Wayne County residents centered around economic issues, concerns about family issues, education and leadership qualities also surfaced.

"Education will be the main issue in November," said Wanda Warden of Wayne. "Although Bush said he would be the education president, we haven't seen any evidence of it."

According to Paul Wojcik, a Republican who plans to vote for Bill Clinton, his decision was made because a change is needed in leadership.

"Clinton is concerned about education and about producing things in the U.S.A.," said Wojcik, a former Westland resident who is vacationing in his former hometown. "I voted for George Bush, but not again. We need the same party in the White House and in Congress. Now, we have the Democrats in the majority in the legislature and a Republican in the White House, and they aren't working together."

Wojcik believes Bush has lost touch with the middle-class and lower- class and has concentrated too much on the wealthier people. Wojcik credits Bush with being good a foreign policy, but does not believe he has been as effective with domestic programs.

"I also like the Clinton-Gore team. I think Dan Quayle may be OK, but he isn't respected. I like the idea of a good team in office," Wojcik said.

Van Buren Township Supervisor David Jacokes believes the American economy will be the issue of the day. "Side issues will be abortion rights versus pro-life and foreign policy versus domestic policy," said Jacokes. "Rather than a race between Bush and Clinton, the November election will be a battle between the status quo and change."

Jacokes said there is a need for major changes in the national policies, and he believes the voters will opt for change when they cast their ballots.

"If you don't move forward, you move backward. There's no such thing as maintaining a status quo. It's the same thing at the national level as it is in our township," Jacokes said.

Jacokes said he is concerned about the Free Trade Agreement, which he believes will "dig us deeper into a recessive hole."

"I support fair trade, but not free trade. I think we will lose a lot of jobs for the middle class. They are the ones who build and consume, but who will do the consuming if they don't have jobs," the township supervisor said.

"Clinton has made a successful move to the middle ground from his liberal stance, but George Bush has not been able to move toward the middle, even though he has tried."

"There are a lot of unemployed people, people on welfare and single mothers who need help. They need education to improve their lives," Field said. "I think we need someone young as President. Times and values have changed, and I think a younger person would be better able to understand the issues that effect people today."

Bellevile resident Gloria Wells sees the economy as the main issue in November.

"People are worried about whether or not they will have jobs. They are worried about what will happen and how they will maintain their families and homes," Wells said. "I'm tired of hearing the bickering back and forth and the charges about who slept with who years ago. I want to see the candidates concentrate on the issues."

Wells is also concerned about possible job losses through implementation of the Free Trade Agreement between the U.S., Mexico and Canada. She noted that both presidential candidates support free trade in North America, so the issue may not become a major one in the campaign.

Charles Haley of Belleville, a 37-year employee of the Ford Motor Co. Truck Plant in Wayne, is concerned about the economy.

"I'm concerned that both candidates support the Free Trade Agreement, and I think that will hurt us. I have three kids who work at Ford and I think two of them will lose their jobs, along with a lot of other people, if the agreement is put into effect," Haley said.

"We don't have much choice. There doesn't seem to be a lot of difference in what Bush and Clinton are saying, but I'll vote for Clinton," Haley said. "We need a change, and I don't think things could get worse with Clinton."

Westland resident Keith DeMolay sees leadership as the main issue.

"Plain and simple, the main issue will be who will be able to lead the country. All of the other issues are important, but it will all get down to who do we trust to lead us for the next four years," said DeMolay.

Civil rights will be an important issue in the 1992 campaign, accordign to Dick Spisak of Westland.

"It's an issue that has been raised before, and it will face the candidates again this year," Spisak said. "The economy also will be an important issue. We need changes in our tax structure to aid the economy. Investment credits and lessening of capital gains taxes could stimulate the economy and put people to work."

Canton Township resident Marcy Lozen, a self-employed clothing designer, hopes to see someone who is pro-business and pro-American products in the White House.

"This is the first election that I have become really involved in," said Lozen, who is a Clinton supporter. "I have three kids, so education is very important to me. I'm also very

Opinion

An honor for us all

City officials in Inkster recently announced that their city had been chosen as the site of the state convention of the National Association for Colored People (NAACP).

This recognition of the efforts of the City of Inkster to attract crowds and demonstrate the hospitality and warmth of the community is long overdue. For far too long, Inkster has been saddled with a reputation marked by too much crime and too little development.

Inkster leaders have, for many years, been attempting to battle this reputation and this assembly of leaders are sure to be impressed with the city as we know it.

Inkster, like every other city, has crime. Drugs are a part of life there, just as in every other municipality. Leaders there are faced with budget cuts, lack of funding for social programs and increasing crime. Why they have been singled out by so many for disparaging remarks and insults can only be attributed to the color of the skin of the majority of their residents.

That is unfortunate. Because the color of their skin has little or nothing to do with the sense of values, the ability to learn and the sense of community residents of Inkster have evidenced. There is development proposed quite often in their city, but elected leaders are not leaping haphazardly or without careful consideration at any projects. Do they have crime. Indeed, but there is no municipality in this area which is crime free.

This decision of the NAACP to convene here will bring Inkster the recognition it has deserved for so long as a fine community with concerned, caring leaders and residents. This is a city of pride and of growth, and the state leaders of the NAACP have chosen to gather here as evidence of the worthiness and value of this community.

We salute the city leaders, the residents and the decision makers at the state level who have elected to honor our area in this way.

The welcome mat is out for you, each and every one. And it truly is our honor to serve this city and the readers there.

Congratulations Inkster, and congratulations to the NAACP on a fine choice of convention sites.

One nation, under God...

Last week, a very special birthday was celebrated.

A 28-year-old woman from Westland traveled to a federal courtroom in downtown Detroit and took her oath of allegiance to the United States of America, thereby becoming a citizen of this country.

Patricia Brown has been a resident of this country since she was 18 months old, went all through grade school and graduated from John Glenn High School. Only her closest friends knew that she was not an American citizen and she has said that she often forgot her alien status herself.

But when she was introduced to the Westland Chamber of Commerce members and guests as a citizen for the first time and asked to lead the Pledge of Allegiance, there were few untouched hearts, particularly hers.

Her motive was simple.

She wanted to vote. She wanted the very same privilege that only about 20 percent of the natural citizens of this country exercise when offered the chance. She went through months of frustration, mountains of paperwork and hours of telephone calls. She completed paperwork, took tests and was stringently investigated and interviewed.

Simply so she could vote.

Ironic that so many others simply could not find the time to make their way to the polling place two weeks ago?

Perhaps if each of us had to endure the difficulties Patricia Brown did for the privilege, we would treasure it accordingly. We thank her for the lesson her diligence and persistence demonstrated to each of us.

And we welcome her warmly.

Rights of unborn are defended

To the editor:

It appears that all the presidential candidates except for President George Bush have succumbed to an irrational resolve of a most tragic and erroneous abortion law.

That is they would have you believe that they prioritize traditional moral concepts and values while they boldly compromise the deliberate execution of the unborn babies in the womb of the mother as a woman's right.

What has happened to our humanity? How can we, in good conscience, continue to believe that the irresponsible, outrageous audacity to terminate the unborn's life, except to save the life of the mother, can be resolved to problems in society?

The Alan Gutmacher Institute, the right hand of Planned Parenthood, although now a separate entity, has confirmed the fact that more than 28 million unborn babies have been sacrificed to abortion for convenience.

Why has this society become so passive and totally indifferent to these tragic confirmation? How long will we tolerate mankind's inhumanity to man?

Our constitution guarantees the right to life of every unborn cherub. Certainly the unborn child's life is a recognized priority. Why is he refused his basic right to life? Since when is it a woman's personal right to deliberately kill the life of her unborn baby? Regardless of an erroneous law that exists, aren't we, as human beings, forgetting about "his humaness"?

Parole board actions explained

To the editor:

While any type of system leaves room for improvement, far too much emphasis has been placed on blaming the parole board for the crimes of Leslie Williams.

When a prisoner enters the Michigan Prison System, he or she is given a number of various requirements by the Department of Corrections (substance/alcohol abuse counseling, educational, psychological, etc.) which must be fulfilled before he is to be released. The parole board is extremely stringent when it comes to the fulfillment of these requirements. Mr. Williams completed his requirements satisfactorily and was released by the parole board according to the time frame pre- determined by the court during his sentencing.

Upon the arrival of a prisoner's first out-date, the parole board reviews his file and determines whether or not he has completed what was required of him by the Department of Corrections. Then, they either release him or make him do more time. It is basically that simple.

It is completely impossible for the parole board to correctly predict what any parolee may or may not do after his release. The people on the board know their jobs and what is required of them. It is obvious that the media and various other codemners do not.

Certainly, Mr. Williams' prior criminal record speaks for itself and nobody is disputing that he should have remained incarcerated for a longer period of time, but the court system, not the parole board, is responsible for that.

Why wasn't he sentenced to a longer prison term? That is the question which should be asked. If Leslie Williams would have been sentenced according to his prior criminal record, he would not have been on our streets, free to commit the terrible crimes he did.

My heart is with the families and victims destroyed by Leslie Williams and I share their sorrow. These awful things never should have happened and indeed could have been prevented but the blame should not lay with the parole board, it must be placed on the lap of the court system.

Readers speaks out for smokers

To the editor:

Millions of American tax-paying cigarette smokers are again about to be strangled with still another extra tax which we all know in our hearts and souls is discriminating and un-American, to say the least.

We already pay $4.50 a carton, a heavy enough burden and anti-smokers want to increase this to $7. This singles out smokers alone to pay this oppressive, regressive tax; we are not against taxes..if they are fairly distributed among all Americans.

Please, Mr. Editor, remember smokers are children of God, human beings, men and women and Americans; we are not the scourge of humanity as we are so often portrayed. Millions of us have served our country in the Armed Forces with honor and pride.

I know I can rely on your inate sense of fairness to address this unfair taxation and help us stop it.

Please do not hassle us further regarding the health issue; the same people holler (health vs. smoking) are among the first to drink themselves into a stupor and then jump in their car and drive out to kill or cripple someone; others in favor of this unfair tax in Washington D.C. think nothing about sending our best young people to another country to die in ditches. So spare us this health issue. Just look at what's fair and what's not.

You and I know it's not fair.

Woman thanks benefactors

To the editor:

I am a 67-year-old woman. My irish setter is almost as old.

We were walking on west I-94 service drive. Unfortunately for me, there were some unexpected depressions, slightly camoflauged by weeds. I safely navigated the first and fell flat at the second, which resulted in a broken left leg.

In my moment of pain, I asked by Creator for help. Within minutes, my first benefactor arrived in the form of a tiny, graying lady in her chariot of red. She took a telephone number and sped on her errand of mercy.

Benefactor number two approached on an older black steed. This lady made herself comfortable on the ground beside me. She had just shopped at Meijer and stated she'd stay until help came.

The next thing I knew, the Van Buren Township people had arrived, four guys and a girl in blue, along with two directors of the senior center and the crew of the Huron Valley Ambulance Corps.

In this day of bad news and trials for mankind, here is an example of the milk of human kindness still flourishing.

Candidate says thanks to voters

To the editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the residents who took the time to vote last Tuesday, Aug. 4. To those who voted for me for Canton Township treasurer in the Republican primary, I offer a special thanks. To all others, please consider me when voting in the general election in November, but above all please vote.

Indeed, it is evident that I would not have been victorious without the help of countless individuals. I would like to thank my "right hand", Flossie Tonda, who has offered her experience and advice for years. There are so many others whose friendship and support I truly value. Most importantly, I would like to thank my daughters and husband, Dick. Their encouragement and love enabled me to win.

It is true that it takes a combination of dedication and hard work to win at anything. In my election, it took much more. It took the help of some very important people who I shall always be grateful to.

Movie selections are criticized

To the editor:

Our community theater is a wonderful plus to our city. Unfortunately, the committee that decides which movies will be shown there is out of touch with the citizens of this community.

Old movies are all right once in a while, but a majority of the citizens in this city are not interested in paying money to see these movies. It is sad that I must go to other communities to see up-to- date movies. Other communities have theaters which only charge $1 or $2 to view a movie that was released within the last year.

At the current time Wayne offers very little entertainment. Hopefully in the future, this will be changed.

Sharie Madden,
Wayne

Naturalized
Westland woman takes oath of citizenship

By DENNIS MANSFIELD
ANP Staff Writer

Patricia Brown is marking time. Each day, the 28-year-old Westland resident is one day closer to Nov. 3 when she will be able to enter a voting booth and exercise her right as an American citizen for the first time.

Brown, a Westland resident since 1970, was sworn in as United States citizen in a ceremony Monday before a Federal Court Judge Patrick Duggan in Detroit.

Tuesday afternoon members of the Westland Chamber of Commerce heard her lead the Pledge of Allegiance at their monthly luncheon. Then chamber member Joe Benyo presented Brown with an American flag pin which represnted Federal Government, a State emblem pin representing the state government and a Westland pin representing local government.

Brown, the daughter of Robert and Margaret Brown, was born in Windsor, Ontario in 1963, and moved to the Detroit area when she was just a year-and-a-half old. And at age 7 she and her family moved to Westland, which is the place she said she truly considers home.

"I don't remember Canada. It's not my home at all," Brown said. "The only memories of Canada I have is when I went and visited my grandparents. So the only time I remember it is as a visitor.

"I went to school here all my life, just like any other American kid," she added. "To me, this has always been by country. I don't even know anything about the Canadian goverment."

Brown graduated from John Glenn High School in 1981, and attended Eastern Michigan University (EMU) where she received her bachelor's degrees in construction management and public relations. Brown is now the news editor at Associated Newspapers Inc., based in Wayne.

Although she waited until now to become a citizen, it has been something she wanted to do for at least 10 years.

"It's something I've wanted to do for a long time, probably since high school," Brown said. "Almost two years ago, my dad said he would pay for everything and that it is somthing I needed to do."

Voting is a right Brown said many people seem to unfortunately overlook, but that they would miss if they could no longer cast their ballot. "It's like being a spectator. You can cheer people on, but you can't get in the game, she said.

"The big thing is now I have all the rights my friends have had," Brown said. "What bothered me is I work so closely with all these political situations, especially with the last few millage elections, where I couldn't express my opinion. With the presidential election coming up this year, I thought it was time to vote."

Brown said the ceremony at the chamber was a special moment, with friends keeping the event a secret telling her she must attend the luncheon for a story. Instead, Brown was sworn in by Benyo as a registered voter.

At the monthly Westland Chamber of Commerce meeting, Joe Benyo registered and swore in Westland Eagle reporter Trish Brown as a registered voter. Brown became a United States citizen last week. ANP photo by Larry DiVizio

Father thanks alert city rescue workers

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP News Editor

The father of a Westland woman involved in a hit and run accident is praising Westland police and rescue personnel for saving his daughter.

Thursday evening, 18-year-old Heather Goble was driving her mother's Buick Skyhawk west on Ford Road. As she stopped to make a right turn into a restaurant located near the intersection of Ford and Wayne roads, a truck hit her from behind, her car flipped over and the driver allegedly continued driving west on Ford Road, according to police reports of the incident.

"I just want to thank the Westland police for doing such a wonderful job," said George Goble, the father of the Westland woman. "My wife received a phone call from them and then by the time I got over to her house, the police had called and they gave us the full report.

"They told us that she was all right, before we went to the scene," Goble said.

Goble drove his daughter to St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia where she was treated and released.

"After seeing that car it's a miracle that she is alive," he said. "Thank God my daughter had a seat belt on. It's a miracle that she was able to physically walk away from the accident."

Sgt. Pete Brokas of the Westland Police Department Traffic Bureau said that police officials were continuing the investigation of the incident.

"At this point, I just assigned it to one of our officers," Brokas said Thursday morning. "We have begun to do a follow up on it."

interested in the economy. When the recession hit, it was very hard on small business people."

"The main issue will be a multi-faceted one, but it will be home and family," said J.D. Landis, pastor of the United Methodist Church of Romulus. "The issues of family stability and financial security for families is tied into this. Families are facing a lot of problems, including the tight job market and how people can get jobs, and issues about the improvement of schools. It seems to be many issues, but it is really all tied together with the family."

Canton Township resident Daniel Calabrese believes the economy will be the major issue, and claims to have the key to success for George Bush, if the President heeds his advice.

"George Brush can guarantee his re-election if he will embrace the Supply Side economy plan intoduced by Kemp, announce that he is dumping the people in his campaign who favored the 1990 budget compromises and will pledge to enact the Supply Side plan. Bush should apologize for the 1990 budget and vow that he'll never do it again, but I don't think he will," said Calabrese who made an unsuccessful primary election bid for the Republican nomination for 21st District representative.

Changing times
LaPointe appointed Belleville football coach

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

There's been a changing of the guards, of sorts, at Belleville High School this year.

Robert J. LaPointe, one of the more successful high school football coaches in the state, has taken over the Tiger reins of the varsity football team. The 44-year-old LaPointe will replace Sam Villa, who coached the team for the past three years.

A former coach at Dearborn Divine Child where he helped build a winning dynasty, LaPointe helped the Falcons win Catholic League championships. He also coached at Eastern Michigan University and also helped plot the grid strategy for Notre Dame High School.

> You know, Bob recruited my son while he was at EMU. He has had some great teams and players.
>
> - Sam Villa

School officials said that they "are very happy to have a coach of LaPointe's caliber coaching at the high school."

"You know," said Villa, who will remain on LaPointe's coaching staff, "Bob recruited my son while he was at EMU. He has had some great teams and players."

Last year, under Villa, the Tigers posted a 2-7 win-lost record. In his three years as coach, Villa's teams compiled a 11-16 overall mark competing in the tough Wolverine 'A' Conference.

LaPointe also was a successful candidate in the race for a Van Buren Township School Board seat in 1990. He resigned the position to accept a teacher's post at the high school last year.

A resident of Belleville for the past 21 years, LaPointe and his wife, Lynn, have four children.

In his bid for the school board, LaPointe stated that he would like to "bring a stable system of quality education to the school system."

And now he will have an opportunity to bring a stable defense and a quality offense to the Tiger football team.

Never-say-die
Challengers rally to win title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The Challengers apparently have learned that in sports, as Yogi Berra, former New York Yankees manager-catcher, used to put it: "It ain't over until the fat lady sings."

And, despite getting off to a slow start, the Challengers never quit.

After compiling an unimpressive 5-8-1 record, the Challengers came back and won the 1992 Westland Youth Athletic Association Shetland tournament playoff title.

It was one of the more dramatic comebacks in the WYAA in recent years, according to baseball officials. The champs finished with a 7-8-1 overall record and the playoff crown.

The WYAA also honored twins Scott and Brian Weir. The 7-year-olds teamed up and sold 1,500 candy bars during the baseball candy sale drive and claimed the WYAA grand prize.

The prize is a $600 gift certificate which may be used to a trip of their own choice.

In addition to the gift certificate, the twins also received WYAA duffle bags, tote bags, stereo headsets and WYAA caps. Their 1500 candy bars also helped their coach-pitch team (Reds) to average over 180 bars, which afforded every players on the team to receive a team jacket.

The twins also had an important third member on their sales staff - their mother, Shelly.

Schedules, please
Preps prepare for fall openers

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Here we go again - would you believe that the 1992-93 high school fall season began this week?

For most, practice began on Monday as prep gridders reported to camp. Cross country, girls basketball and tennis, boys golf team hopefuls also began their practice sessions in anticipation of opening day.

But, before the opener, the Associated Newspapers' Sports Staff will need schedules and head football coaches' home telephone numbers, especially if the coach is new to the area.

ANP staffers are urging athletic directors at Belleville, Romulus, New Boston, Wayne Memorial, Inkster, Robichaud, Plymouth- Canton and Plymouth-Salem to mail - or drop off - the schedules at our offices at 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne, Mich.

Coaches or atheltic directors who need more information may contact the ANP Sports Desk at 729-4000.

Thanks for your cooperation. And good luck during the 1992-93 campaign.

Canton crowns softball champs

The playoffs apparently bring the best out of AJ's softball club.

Second-best in the Canton Township Men's Softball League during the regular campaign, AJ's exploded for seven runs in the seventh inning to stage a come-from-behind victory over ASAP Machine to post a narrow 13-12 victory over their arch rivals.

The victory earned AJ's the parks and recreation playoff title.

AJ's managed to defeat ASAP twice in the double-elimination tournament earlier, winning an easy 7-2 decision. En route to the coveted championship, AJ's also posted some impressive victories over outstanding clubs.

The champs turned back Embassy Square I, 10-4, embarrassed Pogo's, 22- 16, destroyed Exotic Metals 18-3 to advance to the semifinals where they clashed with ASAP Machine.

ASAP stunned the champs 10-5 for their lone loss. AJ's came back and shut out American Yazaki, 5-0, to reach the finals.

ASAP Machine finished in the runnerup spot with victories over Suds, 7-4; Paulin Building, 18-11; Holly's 16-15; and AJ's, 10-5.

The top 16 teams from the regular season Canton Parks and Recreation leagues started the tournament.

In the championship match, ASAP Machine drove to the lead early, building up a 12-6 advantage thanks to a six-run, sixth-inning surge, however, AJ's finally decided to get serious and came back with that seventh-inning rally that turned the tide in their favor.

It's time to sign up for fall softball

Romulus and the Canton Township parks and recreation departments are seeking softball teams for their fall leagues.

Romulus has set a 5 p.m. Sept. 4 deadline for club managers to sign up their teams. Registration will be accepted on a first come, first serve basis for the first six men and women's teams.

There is a $225 per-team registration fee which helps defray the costs for paying umpires, scorekeepers, field preparation and the purchase of softballs.

Games will be played on Sundays, beginning Sept. 13 through Oct. 18.

For further information, please contact the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department.

Canton will begin its five-week league beginning Sept. 8. There is a 10-game schedule and each team will play a doubleheader once a week.

There is a $190 registration fee.

Teams that played in the summer leagues may register Aug. 24 through Aug. 27. New teams may sign up starting Aug. 28.

Each team also will be responsible for paying $13 per game for the umpire prior to the game. There will be a team sponsor trophy to the league champ, however, no individual trophies will be awarded.

Lawmakers blast proposed insurance bill as self-serving

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

While the jury remains out on whether the proposed AAA Insurance Company proposal would roll back rates, the state board of canvassers have failed to agree on a ballot designation for the proposition.

The board, made up of two Democrats and an equal number of Republicans, have delayed the designation without providing a legitimate reason, according to AAA attorney Peter Ellsworth.

Ellsworth accused the canvassers of playing politics with an issue that has divided the state lawmakers.

"They (the canvassers) are just making it tough for AAA to get specific in its campaign ads - that is the only reason I can think of for the delay," he said.

> "This initiative and the other proposals of the insurance industry claim that there may be a rate reduction if consumers give up their medical benefits and liability coverage and agree to further restrictions on their ability to sue for death or serious injury.
>
> - Sen. William Faust

The proposal would need a designation, such as A, B, C, to identify it from the rest of the proposals that may appear on the Nov. 3 ballot.

According to officials at the state elections bureau, the two Democrats have asked for the delay until the Sept. 4 deadline; the two Republicans said they are ready to name the proposal.

In the meantime, most local Democrat lawmakers have strongly opposed the proposal on the basis that if approved the law would not roll back insurance rates but would do the opposite.

Also, some legislators believe the law would provide the insurance companies with a windfall in profits.

State Representative Gregory E. Pitoniak (D-Taylor), whose district includes Romulus, earlier this year said that insurance companies in Michigan would "reap a profits windfall of roughly $60 to $70 million, with AAA alone realizing a windfall close to $17 million.

"The 20 percent rollback in premiums under the AAA plan would save the average policy holder about $148. However, most of that reduction, about $94, would be from the elimination of the consumer's payment into the Michigan Catastrophic Claims Association, which really doesn't affect the insurers profits since they just pass that money directly to the state."

State Senator William Faust (D-Westland) has also spoken out against the AAA proposal.

"This initiative and the other proposals of the insurance industry claim that there may be a rate reduction if consumers give up their medical benefits and liability coverage and agree to further restrictions on their ability to sue for death or serious injury," Faust stated. "The AAA proposal and other insurance industry proposals do not guarantee any savings.

"And, any time any industry, be it General Motors or AAA or any other firm, wants to write a specific law, one must suspect the law is self- serving," Faust stressed.

Council meetings may be televised

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

City officials in Wayne are continuing to research the various aspects of televising their meetings.

Recently Bill Richards, assistant to the city manager, informed councilmembers it could cost about $30,000 for a video system to be installed at City Hall.

"Cathy Karas and I met with Robert Pincombe of Cruse Communications to discuss the equipment needed to cablevise council meetings," Richards said. "The main purpose at that time was to confirm the original cost estimates and to solicit assistance in developing equipment specifications."

The $30,000 estimate consists of a two-camera "suitcase" production system, according to Richards.

"Mr. Pincumbe also advised us that our current camcorders are incompatible with the type of equipment we have been discussing," Richards said. "For us to do off-site taping would require a third camera and possibly a life-gate vehicle to transport the suitcase unit, due to its weight."

The suitcase system invovles a unit which would include two video monitors (one for each camera), a character generator and an audio mixer for at least 12 microphones (one for each person at the council table and one or two for the audience).

This unit is portable and can be taken to various community events including baseball games, parades, festivals and ice shows, according to Wayne Mayor pro tem Edward Phillips.

Richards explained that the cameras would be mounted in the council chambers.

"One camera would be mounted in the back of the chambers, would be remote controlled and equipped with pan (side-to-side) and zoom," Richards said. "The other camera would be stationary (no pan or zoom) and be mounted behind the council table for shots of the audience."

Richards and Karas will continue to research the various aspects of cablevising. Once their study is completed, they will provide information to the council, he said.

Westland child takes on entertainment challenges

by Margo Dewey - Features Editor

She can act, dance and sing. Her legs and arms move in swift motions in the air while tumbling. To top it off, Westland phenomenon Jessica Berner, 7, also models for national businesses including Kmart.

Jessica has performed with top celebrities such as Brooke Shields, Rich Little and Norm Crosby. The blond, dark-eyed beauty began her professional career as an actress/model/gymnast when she was only 2 years old, according to her mother Debbie Lindquist.

"I put her into a ballet class at John Glenn High School when she was 2 years old because she was an only child, and I wanted her to be around more children," Lindquist said. "When she was 3, we enrolled her into Susie's Dance Pointe in Westland. She continues to develop her talent. It takes a lot of practice, but she lives and breathes dancing."

Jessica enjoys ballet, tap and jazz. Most recently, she danced on the Showboat with Rich Little and Leslie Gore in Chesaning, Mich.

"She auditioned in March to perform on the boat," Lindquist said. "Out of the 500 acts audtioned, she was one out of 24 selected to dance with the celebrities. "

Jessica keeps a very rigorous schedule between school, dancing, gymnastics and modeling for commercials and department stores. She even has her own private gymnastics coach, Jamal Elzien.

"I practice dance and gymnastics for an hour every day," Berner said. "I always practice on the grass in the backyard and in the house."

Her training experience includes: modeling/dance-Susie's Dance Pointe in Westland-five years, modeling-Feminique Modeling School in Dearborn-four years, modeling-Production Plus Agency, Southfield-one year, modeling-Barbizon Modeling Agency in Detroit-one year, gymnastics-Michigan Academy of Gymnastics-two years and gymnastics-Gym Baz-three years.

Her modeling experience includes runway modeling for malls and agencies and commercials for Meijer, Remerica and Associates Real Estate and Cubby Hole.

"I've also modeled for Hudson's and Crowley's mostly," Berner said. "The hardest part is being able to change really fast between each new outfit if it's for dance or runway modeling. I love it though."

Jessica is hoping to obtain more television work in the near future.

"I really like television because you meet a lot of new friends," Berner said. Jessica will be a third grader this fall at St. Mary's in Wayne. Out of all the school subjects, her favorite is religion.

"What I want to be when I grow up though is a nurse," Berner said.

Juggling practices and performances doesn't leave this talented beauty with much playtime, but Jessica does manage to enjoy her favorite hobbies.

"I like swimming and ice skating," Berner said. "I like to play with my friends. When my friends do come over, I don't show them my trophies from dance and modeling because I don't want to show off. I want them to like me for me."

Jessica has been a 1991-92 local, state and national beauty and talent winner. She has modeled with Brooke Shields and Susan Lucci at various malls in the Metropolitan Detroit area.

Other accomplishments include being selected as the "Spokesmodel Child" for International Talent and Commercial Co. in Southfield and attended the Great Lakes Modeling Convention in Cleveland, Ohio where she was choosen as "Overall Child Model" at the convention in November of 1990.

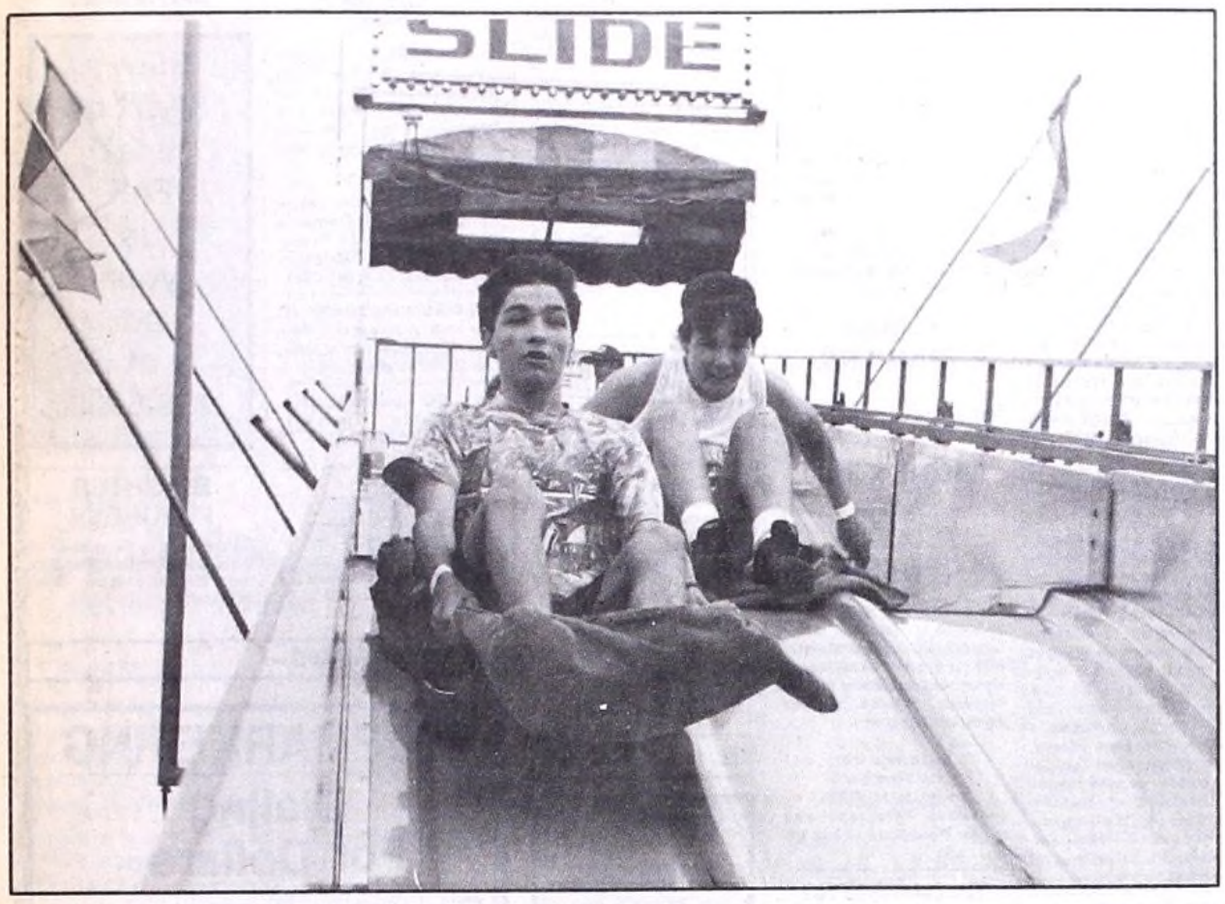
A day at the fair

Youngsters of all ages enjoy old - fashioned fun



It was a high-time for those brave enough to attempt the super slide which attracted customers of several generations during the festivities.

There was plenty of fun for prospective sharpshooters at the games of chance set up along the midway at the fair.

Bobbie Sue Skyles brought her pet skunk, Stinky, to the pet show at the fair.

Munching on cotton candy and hot dogs, scores of youngsters toured the livestock exhibits and rode the amusement rides, while their parents viewed the demonstrations and shows.

Much like the youngsters who attended the first Wayne County Fair 46 years ago, the children and teens enjoyed the merry-go-round and ferris wheel as well as sampling a taste of country life. Young city slickers had an opportunity to see the horses, poultry, rabbits and other animals raised by their country cousins and to attend the livestock shows and auctions.

Clowns entertained in old-fashioned style, while at the fairground gate, bungee-jumpers leaped into a new thrill. The stand-bys of the county fair and the new additions gave evidence that there is room for innovation as well as tradition in the family-focused event.

Agriculture was featured on the opening day of the fair. Next, senior citizens were honored, and on the third day of the event, children and servicmen were saluted. Merchants and families also received special focuses at the fair.

Photos by Ken Garner

There was no detering many brave souls who crashed, banged and bumped their way through the bumper car rides. No reports were available on the number of headaches and neck injuries reported following the whiplash-ladden excitement.

Cindy and Heather Bailey opted for some old-fashioned fun on the carousel, which found many an admirer and rider during the fun.

Manufacturer offers tips on tire care

Being well read means more than just how many books one has read. If individuals are not literate where their tires are concerned, treadwear problems can become a big concern for vehicles and impact on safe driving.

Treadwear problems with tires can take many forms including cuts or punctures in the tread, irregular treadwear which can cause a noisy or uncomfortable ride, and lack of proper tread depth which can lead to more serious problems in adverse driving conditions.

According to Stan Cooper, consumer products manager for Firestone, tires should be checked at least once a month for potential treadwear problems.

Uneven wear problems can be caused by several factors including improper inflation pressures, misalignment, poor suspension and improper balance. If these problems are not recognized and corrected, more serious tire damage can occur.

One of the most important aspects of treadwear, proper tread depth, requires constant attention. When the tread is worn down to one- sixteenth of an inch, the tires need to be replaced. A simple test using a penny can help you determine the safeness of your tires' tread depth.

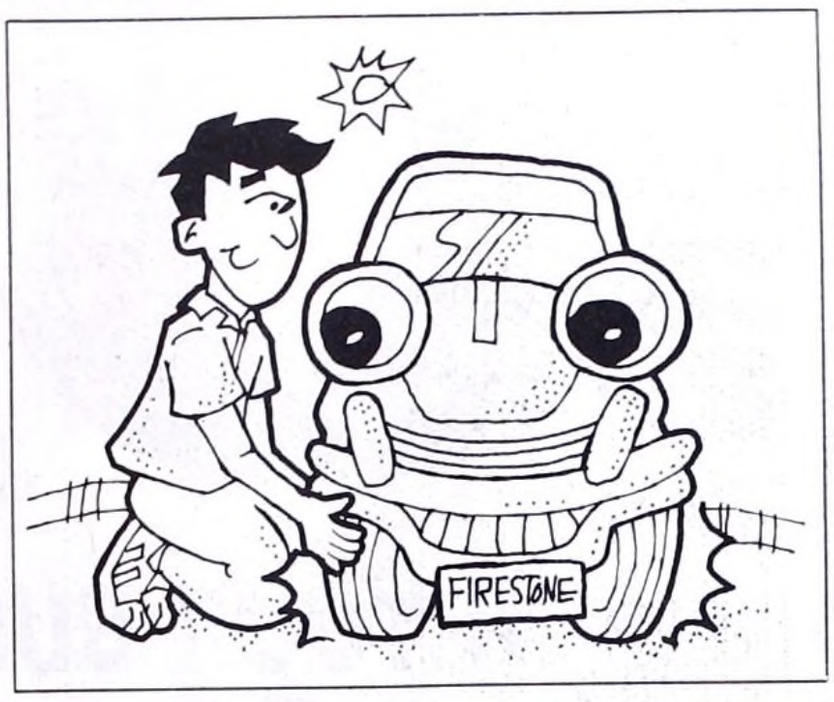
Simply insert a penny between the tire tread with Abe Lincoln's head facing down into the tread. If part of Lincoln's head is obscured by the tread, you're driving with a safe amount of tread. If, on the other hand, you can see the top of Lincoln's head, you need a new tire.

Another way to check for proper tread depth is to look for wear bars which typically appear on your tires when the tread has reached unsafe levels. Wear bars, which look like narrow strips of smooth rubber across the tread, will appear on the tire when the tire is worn out.

As you continue to "read" your tires for potential problems, look closely for any pieces of glass, stones, or metal or other foreign objects wedged in the tread. These objects can work themselves deeper into the tread causing air loss.

Certain uneven wear patterns may show that your tires are suffering from internal structural damage. One way to determine this is to use your hands periodically to feel the tread of your tires. If high, low or usually smooth area are noticed, you should have your tires inspected by your tire dealer.

Becoming treadwear literate doesn't require spending countless hours in the library. Rather, just a few minutes to look for potential problems with your tire tread and taking the time to do so.



Uneven wear problems can be caused by several factors including improper inflation pressures, misalignment, poor suspension and improper balance. If these problems are not recognized and corrected, more serious tire damage can occur.

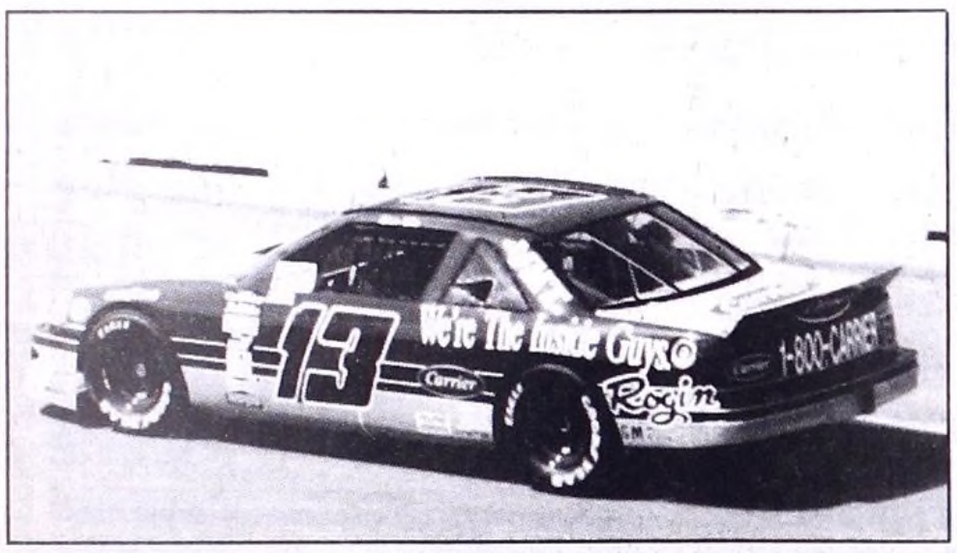
RACE for YOU

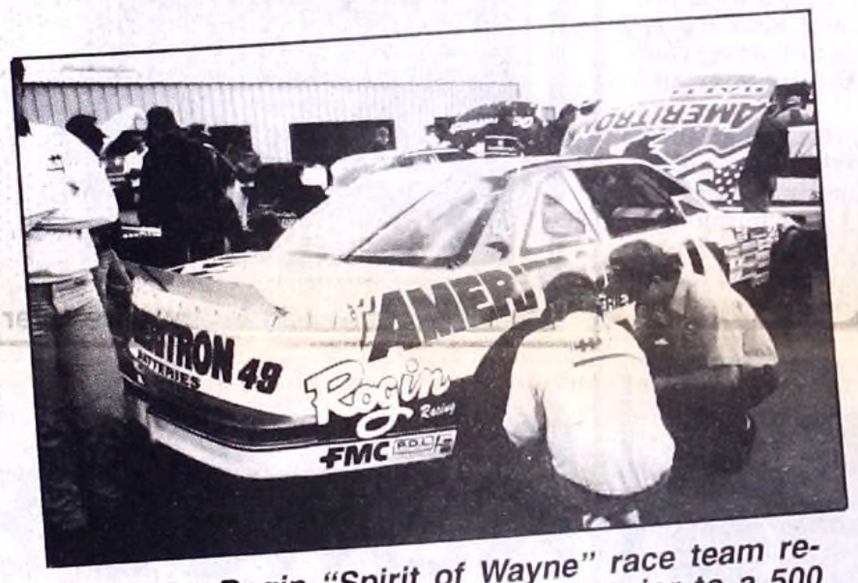


John Rogin enters the 3rd $150,000 race car on to the track - 700 Horsepower - Driver Stan Fox also drove in this year's INDY 500!

WE RACE FOR YOUR BUSINESS!

Keeping The Spirit of Wayne alive...

For the second year, The "Spirit of Wayne" has raced at Michigan International Speedway and many other major raceways around the country:



The John Rogin "Spirit of Wayne" race team reviews some final adjustments just prior to a 500 mile race. Our driver in the #49, Stanley Smith, is defending champion!

We have put our own service crew in the race pits to learn and experience performance, pride and to work as a team for a common goal, customer satisfaction.

At 210 m.p.h. we know that lives are at stake and you don't get a second chance. That's the same with your business and we know that we won't have a second chance at your business if you are not 210% satisfied.

(P.S. - Our Big August Sale is in progress.)
